

Sleeping Beauty

Written by Ruth Merttens
Illustrated by Anne Holm Petersen

The king and queen are very sad.
They have no baby.

Then one day, a baby arrived!
They called her Aurora.

The king and queen were so happy. They had a big party and invited seven magic fairies.

But the king and queen had forgotten to invite one very old fairy. She was very angry.

The first six fairies each gave the baby a magical gift.

When you are sixteen,
you will prick your finger
on a spindle and die!

Then the cross old fairy flew down. The king and queen were afraid.
She cursed the princess.

The king and the queen were so upset! The bad fairy flew away.

The 7th fairy flew to the cradle. "I cannot undo the spell," she told the king and queen. "But I can make it less bad."

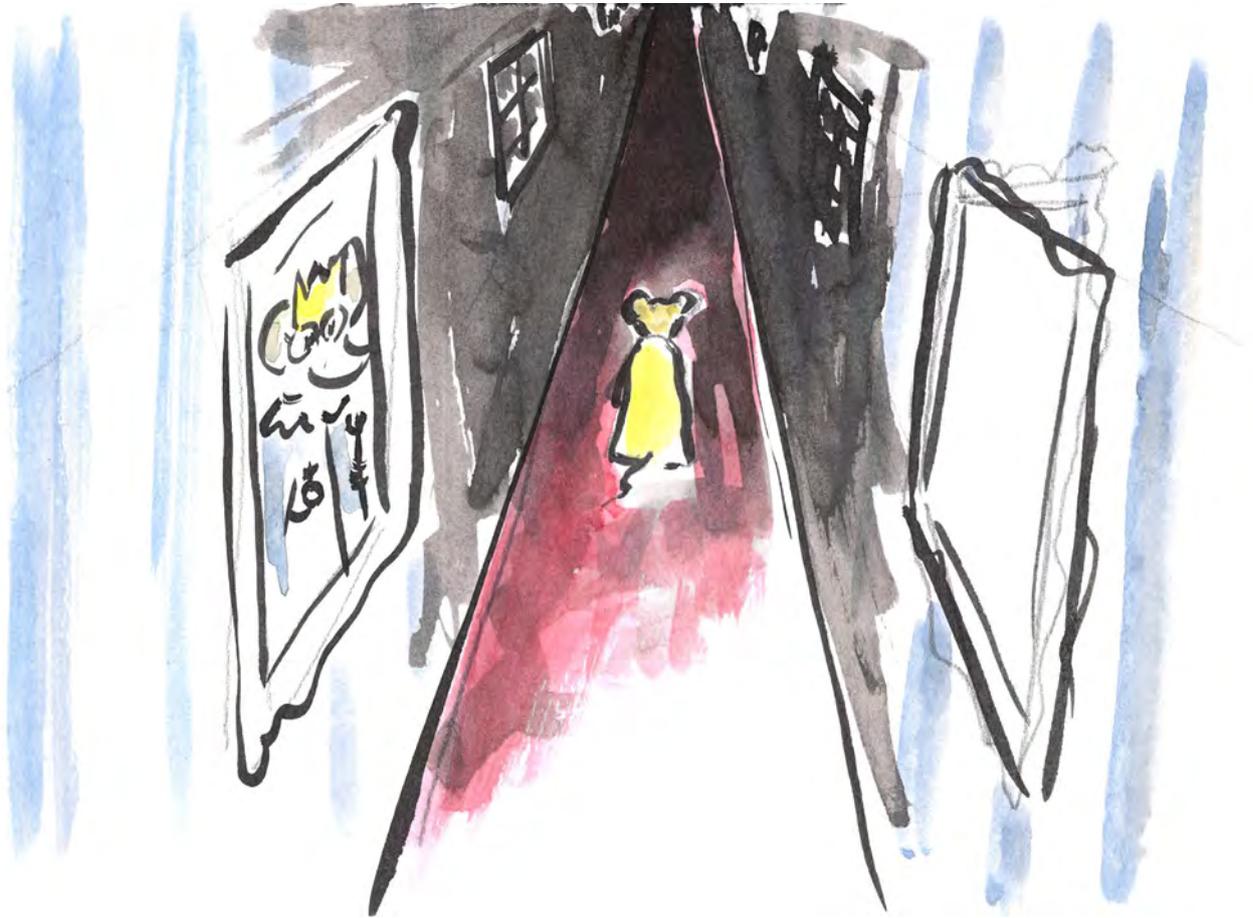

The king and queen made sure that every spinning wheel and spindle was thrown out of the castle.

The princess grew. She loved to play and dance and sing. She was very happy.

At last the princess had her 16th birthday.
Everyone had a great time!

That night, the princess could not sleep.
She left her room and wandered about.

In a dark corner she found an old fairy.
She was spinning some silver thread.

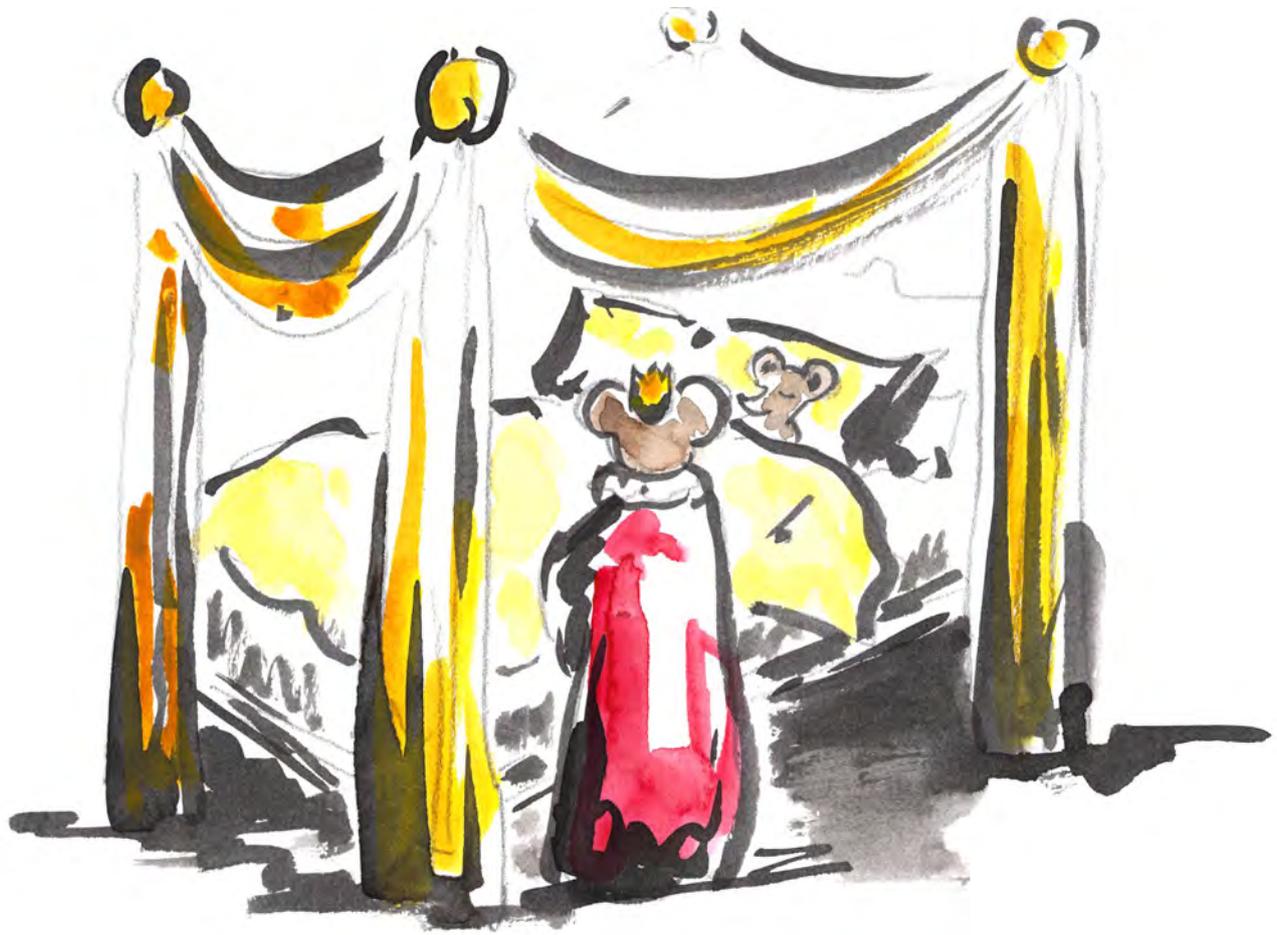

The princess put out her hand to feel the silver thread.
Immediately she pricked her finger and fell into a deep sleep!

In the morning the queen and king found her.

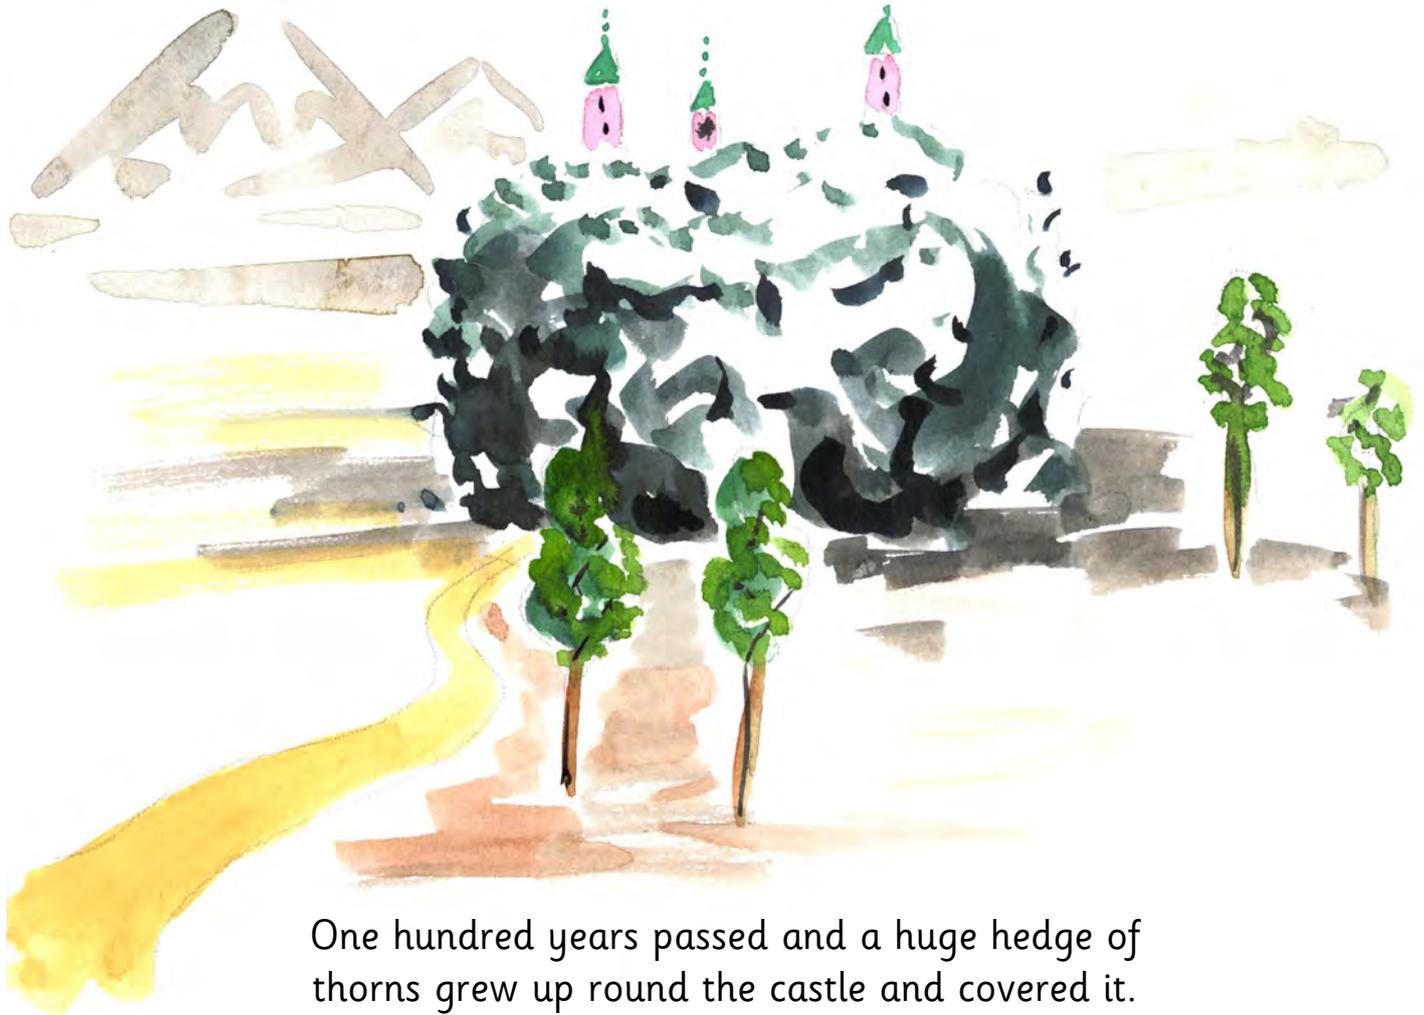

They took her to her bed and called the good fairy.

The good fairy could not undo the spell.

She knew that the princess would be alone and sad if she woke up in 100 years and everyone had died. So she put everyone else to sleep as well.

One hundred years passed and a huge hedge of thorns grew up round the castle and covered it.

One day a prince was riding through the forest.
He could just see the castle towers.

He hacked his way through to the castle door.

He made his way in through the castle to where the princess lay, still sleeping.

The prince bent over and kissed her.
The princess stretched out her arms and woke up.

Everyone in the castle also woke up.

The prince stayed and got to know the king and the queen.
The princess grew to like him very much.

Finally the prince married the princess and they lived happily in the castle. The good fairy often visited them!
